Craig Parsons, a composer and orchestra conductor, is also a much sought after presenter in corporate communications, leadership and the pursuit of excellence. Mr. Parsons travels nationwide giving executive training seminars and keynote addresses. His combination of musical and comedy experience make him a popular choice for bringing new insights to both personal development and team building. While sharing leadership and life lessons from the world of the classical orchestra conductor, Mr. Parsons' musical timing and fast wit add excitement and interest to executive retreats and workshops.

Craig Parsons regularly performs at the finest concert halls throughout the nation. Maestro Parsons has conducted symphony orchestras in Milwaukee, Orlando, Boston, Salt Lake City and New Orleans. Additionally, as a musical director/producer he has recorded and performed with a variety of star performers, such as Danny Thomas, George Burns, Broadway star Melba Moore. Mr. Parsons has also shared the stage with Charles Kuralt in a performance leading the Toronto Symphony Orchestra in a concert of his original compositions, arrangements and unique comedy performing.

Equally at home in the world of comedy or classical music, Craig Parsons combines the spontaneity of humor with the discipline of music to offer attendees at his seminars and workshops fresh approaches to personal growth and goal-directed team building.
