

Mitchell Lee Marks is an internationally recognized expert on corporate culture, leadership, employee behavior, organizational change, and mergers and acquisitions, downsizings, restructurings and other major organizational transitions. As a motivating and engaging keynote speaker, he couples first hand experience from some of the most prominent organizational transitions worldwide with sound conceptual material. He is a frequent speaker to professional groups and has lectured at the Harvard Business School, the Smithsonian Institution, and a wide variety of national and international conferences.

Mitch has advised in over 100 cases of mergers, acquisitions, restructurings, and other major transitions, including some of the most prominent corporate combinations in history. He also works with a variety of leaders and managers in the areas of organizational change, team building, strategic direction, organizational effectiveness, corporate culture, human resources management, and the planning and implementation of mergers, acquisitions, reorganizations, and other transitions. His clients range from small start-ups to large multinational corporations, as well as not-for-profit organizations. Current or past clients Pfizer, Intel, BP, Motorola, AT&T, Lockheed Martin Corporation, Hewlett Packard, Unisys, Abbott Laboratories, Johnson & Johnson, Scios, Imperial Oil of Canada, Molson Breweries, Bank of America, Citibank, American Airlines, Delta Airlines, Kaiser Permanente Medical Care Program, Blue Shield of California, Los Angeles County, the March of Dimes, and others in the financial, manufacturing, health care, entertainment, high technology, government, publishing, consumer products, and communications industries.

Reports of Mitch's work have been featu...

Mitchell Marks

Speech Topics

- ▮ Teambuilding
- ▮ Peak Performance
- ▮ Motivation
- ▮ Management
- ▮ Leadership
- ▮ Change

