

Michael Rogers is an internationally-known futurist, author, and technology pioneer who most recently served as futurist-in-residence for The New York Times. He also writes the popular Practical Futurist column for MSNBC. His consultancy has worked with companies ranging from FedEx, Boeing and NBC Universal to Microsoft, Pfizer and Siemens, focusing on how companies can think about the future in useful ways. He speaks to audiences worldwide and is a regular guest on radio and television, known for his use of stories and humor to create an optimistic and inspirational view of future challenges.

Rogers began his career as a writer for Rolling Stone magazine. He co-founded Outside magazine and then launched Newsweek's technology column, winning numerous journalism awards. For ten years he was vice president of The Washington Post Company's new media division, leading both the newspaper and Newsweek into the new century and earning patents for multimedia technology. He is also a best-selling novelist whose books have been published worldwide, chosen for the Book-of-the-Month club and optioned for film.

Rogers earned degrees in physics and creative writing at Stanford University, with additional studies in finance and management at the Stanford Business School Executive Program. He lives in New York City and is currently working on book and television projects. To book futurist Michael Rogers call Executive Speakers Bureau 800-754-9404.

Michael Rogers

Speech Topics

- Technology
- Innovation
- Globalization
- Future
- Executive Speaker

Testimonials

"Your knowledge, expertise, insights and charisma educated our audience and stimulated us to think about where we could be in the near future."

- Prudential Financial.

"Michael presents as though he is talking with you versus at you. He's someone you would love to be seated next to at any event!"

- General Electric.