

Dynamic, knowledgeable, and energetic are words clients often use to describe James Cathcart. His quick sense of humor and down-to-earth style make him one of FranklinCovey's most requested consultants.

James has embraced a variety of life experiences that enrich his seminars. For example, he has traveled the world extensively and has lived in South Africa. James has also been a stand-up comedian.

Prior to his work with FranklinCovey, James was a security supervisor for Utah Transit Authority, an organization designed to meet transportation needs in northern Utah. He has been a high school teacher and an Afrikaans language instructor.

James has served clients representing a number of industries including technology and telecommunications. He has also worked successfully with the military and other governmental agencies.

James graduated from Brigham Young University with a B.S. in sociology and organizational behavior. His emphasis in business ethics and principle-centered leadership has contributed significantly to his value to clients.

James lives in Washington State with his wife, Laura. They are the proud parents of twins born in 2006. James' interests include computers, military history, and adventure "boldly going where I've never gone before—preferably in my Mini Cooper S."
