

Peter Baines is an international keynote speaker who shares his lessons on leadership, change management and corporate social responsibility. Peter now provides a rare insight into the lessons learnt from challenges faced in his career as a police officer, forensic investigator and charity founder. His most recent work has been with companies to create unique shared experiences. The richness of experiences are magnified ten fold when they are shared. And is there a better experience than one when the people come together and bring about change for someone else.

Peter has presented to tens of thousands since he started in 2005 and provides one of the most motivational and inspirational presentations you will ever see. He has a captivating story which he tells with warmth and humour and gives each person who listens something to take away for themselves, their family and their workplace.

His audience is vast having presented to major corporations and governments on Leadership and Corporate Social Responsibility and has a history of presenting in Europe, North America, and extensively throughout the Asia Pacific Region. He has presented to Interpol, the UN Office of Drug & Crime, the Government of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia, the Sultan of Oman, BHP Billiton, United Fire Brigade Association of New Zealand and the Starwood Hotel Group Indochina. Most recent is his work with the major Australian banking corporation NAB who requested his assistance following the devastating Queensland floods and cyclone.

The impetus for Peter Baines speaking was the events that followed the South East Asian Tsunami. The work that he does now with Government and Corporates, along with the amazing work at Hands provides new material that he frequen...
