

Described by the Director of Photography at National Geographic as one of the most versatile photographers of his generation, Dick Durrance helps leaders and their teams harness the logical and the visual power of their minds to unleash their creative vision, see perplexing challenges from new perspectives and transform intractable problems into promising opportunities.

As the only National Geographic photographer ever named Magazine Photographer of the Year and Advertising Photographer of the Year (as CEO of his own company), Dick Durrance brings a uniquely comprehensive understanding of the creative process to helping corporate executives, association leaders, medical professionals and financial entrepreneurs harness the full power of their imaginations. He shows them how, by using the visual potential of their minds to see difficulties from new perspectives and the logical power of their minds to create well planned solutions, they can bring to the world the very best they and their organizations have to offer.

Testimonials

"Dick spoke at our recent Great Ideas Conference. He did a GREAT JOB! His talk "Dream Like a Champion" was one of the highest rated sessions. His session was beautifully done, incorporating his gorgeous National Geographic photos to teach life-lessons. He was personable, creative, and got great results. I recommend him to anyone looking for an inspirational speaker."

- Sr. Manager, Learning, ASAE.

"If a picture is worth a thousand words, then a thousand well-chosen words married with a lifetime of incredible and emotional images is truly priceless. Dick Durrance creates that balance with a skill that only a true communicator can accomplish. He takes you on a journey of discovery, not only of images and vistas, but of a vision that integrates the mind's eye into every aspect of your personal and business life. It is a transforming experience with applications that extend way beyond a camera lens."

- Director of Communications, The Broadmoor.
