

Mallory Brown is a worldwide adventure traveler, documentary filmmaker, and global humanitarian. She travels the world to tell real-life stories of impact. Mallory's goal is to encourage others to embrace empathy and reignite their own desire to make a difference. She has traveled to over 60 countries, started two socially conscious businesses, and raised hundreds of thousands of dollars to fight international poverty.

Her impact projects have been featured by The Today Show, the New York Times, Cosmopolitan Magazine, the Huffington Post, and many others. For her projects, Mallory has secured corporate sponsorship from organizations such as Ford Motor Company, Zappos, CrowdRise, Moosejaw Mountaineering, and Meijer.

Mallory's latest campaign, "Walk A Mile" is a global marathon for women's empowerment. She's walking a marathon, one mile at a time, with 26 impoverished women around the world. 26 miles. 26 women. 26 stories of strength. Each "mile" benefits a local women's charity.

In her keynote, Mallory delivers an interactive and heartwarming presentation, sharing her global stories with engaging content and captivating visuals. She is a refreshing break from the traditional business keynote -- all the while providing attendees take-home value. Mallory's story inspires others to live a passionate, generous, and global life.
