

Excellence in Action

Demand for Tony's high-energy style in coaching, training, and speaking is propelled by his compelling desire to provide value to everyone.

High-Energy, High-Value Content

A high-energy style, paired with unparalleled optimism, captures the attention of his audience. His personal commitment is to equip his listeners in a matter of days - or even hours - with skills that would normally take years to master.

Through his studies, contacts, and natural charisma, Tony has become recognized as one of the nation's leading authorities on achieving results through improved organization, presentation, and communication skills.

Desire to Help People Achieve More

Driven from an early age, at 23 Tony became a self-made millionaire by helping others. He distinguishes his value by being extremely disciplined, organized and, as a result, a man of action. Tony is one of the few who actually put into action things they learn.

A lifestyle of constant learning is Tony's goal. He not only studies more than 100 books per year, but he also has each book summarized so he can share the key points of the most important books with others around him. His passion to better himself links directly to his overwhelming desire to see others go further in life.

Experienced

In 1986, Tony owned and operated several successful companies. That year, the market and tax laws changed, causing his fortune to disappear overnight. In spite of the setback, Tony entered the speaking business, not only as a means of making a living, but also to share with others such fundamentals of success as goal setting and discipline. He discovered, however, that speaking was not his strength. His determination to succeed at whatever h...
