

David Stillman is a generational expert and an internationally acclaimed keynote speaker. He is co-author of two best-selling books on the generations at work including When Generations Collide (HarperCollins) and The M-Factor: How the Millennial Generation Is Rocking the Workplace (HarperBusiness). He has appeared on CNN, CNBC, and the TODAY Show as well as in Fast Company, The New York Times, and The Washington Post, among numerous other national publications.

David is excited for his newest book called "Gen Z @ Work" being published by HarperCollins. It describes the 7 key traits of Gen Z and was named by the NY Post as one of the 5 books to read in 2017. Best of all, he has coauthored this book with his 17-year-old Gen Z son, Jonah.

David has received rave reviews from Fortune 100 companies including 3M, American Express, Best Buy, Cisco Systems, Deloitte, Disney, GE, General Mills, Johnson & Johnson, Lockheed Martin, Pepsi, PricewaterhouseCoopers, Pfizer, and many more. His creative communications work earned him numerous accolades including gold medals at the NY Film Festival and the much coveted CLIO Award. He was named as one of 200 to Watch. Diane Sawyer from ABC said it best, "David will help you see the world through the eyes of a different generation."

Testimonials

"Your enthusiasm for the topic was quite evident and much anticipated. In fact, many attendees felt your session was the most valuable of the conference."

- Conference Board.

"You did a great job of explaining how history and each person's graduation experiences have affected how they approach their jobs and what businesses can do to adapt to these different generational viewpoints."

- YPO.

David Stillman

Speech Topics

- Leadership
- Generations
- Diversity
- Business Culture

