

Jeanne Robertson reached her 6'2" stature at age thirteen. Perhaps it was an indication of a future speaking career that would soar to great heights. No, professional speaking might not have been predicted when Jeanne was in the seventh grade in Graham, North Carolina, when and where she would have been voted most likely to make the basketball team and least likely to be a contestant in the Miss America Pageant. She did make the team—averaging more than thirty points per game in her junior and senior years—but as Miss North Carolina 1963 she also competed in the Miss America Pageant where she was named Miss Congeniality.

It was her participation in and perhaps even her losing of the Miss America title that turned Jeanne's life into a succession of events which led her to be one of the funniest, busiest and most popular professional speakers in America today. Because she was asked to speak every day as Miss North Carolina, Jeanne traveled her native state for one year speaking at pageants and addressing civic clubs and corporations. When that time was over, she found that people were willing to pay her to come and address their groups and conventions and loving every laughing minute of it. They wanted Jeanne—not just a title holder—and they wanted her because she made them laugh.

At that point, Jeanne still viewed speaking as a way to make a little money while continuing her education. She received her degree at Auburn University and taught physical education in high school and college, a career she enjoyed for nine years. But throughout those years, the requests continued to pour in for her to speak. In 1976, she stopped teaching and entered professional speaking full time. With the flexibility to speak more often...

Jeanne Robertson

Speech Topics

- Motivation
- Humor

Testimonials

□ Enough already! My phone is ringing off the hook and I can't get anything done because people keep calling to say they loved you - did you have to be that good!

□

- Minit Mart Foods, Inc. .

□ Thank you, thank you, thank you. I haven't laughed so hard in years You're wonderfully funny and kept the entire audience captivated with your wit. I laughed so much my side hurt - you are truly a treasure!!

- Bayonne, NJ, Admin Conference, San Antonio, 10/08.