

Greg Vetter is president of Vetter Productivity, an organizational training and consulting firm founded in Atlanta in 1989 and author of the book Find It In 5 Seconds-Gaining Control In The Information Age.

Greg creates systems and work processes that allow you to work smarter, faster and more efficiently-that is, produce more in less time and with less stress. More importantly, he gives you back control of your work life. He does this through speeches and workshops utilizing his A Vetter Way® productivity system.

Greg's services differ from those of the typical time-management company. He doesn't fall for the easy answer, but searches for the motivation behind why people do what they do. Feeling overwhelmed or out of control, drowning in paperwork and clutter, and reacting constantly to interruptions are symptoms, not causes, of deeper psychological issues. By resolving these issues, people are free to work at their peak capacity.

Greg has assisted people in organizing their e-mail, computers and paper so they can find information in 5 seconds or less. He also teaches them a system of how to work. He has created many systems and work processes including space and design layout for a printing company; streamlining the workflow and storage system for chemists in a lab for Coca-Cola; creating a location shoot work flow system for a CNN producer, and standardizing a company's entire information system.

The wealth of information Greg Vetter brings to you comes from personally working with a wide array of companies located throughout the United States. Greg has collected a plethora of valuable information from working with presidents to secretaries, entrepreneurs to Fortune 100 companies, and no...
